THE AKHON ENGRAVING CO. PRINT.

VARIETIES.

Crawford. Late. A fine, large berry of excellent quality; but it requires rich, heavy soil and good cultivation.

Cloud. Early. Similar to Crescent in growth, but inferior in productiveness.

Cumberland. Late. Desirable for amateur culture.

Eureka. Early. The plant grows strong, with an abundance of runners. The fruit is large and of fair quality. Commercial growers and amateurs should try it.

Gandy. Late. The plant is vigorous, very enduring, with an abundance of runners. The berry is large, very firm, and of good quality. Unexcelled for a distant market.

Hinman. Mid-season. Originated by Mr. Hinman, near Akron, O. The plant is vigorous and grows runners freely. Not fruited. It is credited with large, uniform size, good color, firmness, and productiveness equal to Crescent.

Haverland. Early. A very productive and vigorous plant, multiplying very fast. Commercial growers will be sure to profit by it, but it is best suited to a near market.

Henderson. Not sufficiently productive.

Hampden. The fruit is small and misshapen.

Logan. Plant strong and vigorous. Not fruited. It is credited with great productiveness, large size, and fine quality.

Louise. Mid-season. A very vigorous plant, growing runners freely and yielding large crops. The fruit is large, conical, and of a good color.

Miami. Late. The plant grows vigorously, multiplies freely, and produces fairly. The fruit is average size and fair quality.

May King. Early. A vigorous plant, multiplying freely, and producing well everywhere. The fruit is good size, fair in quality, and moderately firm.

Viola. Early. The plant is large, vigorous, and makes plants freely. Not fruited. It is claimed to be immensely productive.

Plants are sent by mail pre-paid; by express, not pre-paid. Six at dozen rates, and fifty at hundred rates.

Those marked "P" are pistillate; "S" staminate. The pistillate varieties should have every fourth or fifth row planted with a staminate variety, to fertilize them.

Rooted plants of any variety will be sent by express only, at two cents per plant, additional to the price by mail.

The varieties printed in full-faced type are best suited for general culture.
